Outreach

As a Christian-led law firm, Ward Black Law is a long-time partner of International Cooperating Ministries (ICM), a non-profit organization dedicated to building churches and orphanages in third world countries. Our staff has traveled to China, India, Vietnam and Africa to help ICM's church building efforts. Each year, Ward Black Law staff also travel with Habitat for Humanity International to Honduras to build affordable housing for those in need.

Not only does Ward Black Law care about the community, it cares about its children. Through our involvement with the Out of the Garden Project and Toys for Tots, we impact the lives of children living in poverty in our area. Ward Black Law is grateful to serve alongside so many friends and neighbors to seek justice, care for those in need, and work for the good of our city, our state, our country and our world.

Meet Your Legal Team

Janet Ward Black, principal owner of Ward Black Law, is personally invested in many of our outreach efforts, but she has a particular passion for providing legal services to those at or below the poverty line. Her work with other North Carolina attorneys has brought much-needed legal aid to tens of thousands of North Carolinians through the 4ALL campaign. Janet Ward initiated this statewide campaign when she served as president of the 16,000 member NC Bar Association. She was the fourth woman president of that 108 year old organization in 2007-2008.

Gerard Davidson practiced personal injury and products liability litigation with the Greensboro firm of Smith Moore Leatherwood, LLP for 35 years before joining Ward Black Law in 2013. He specializes in products liability and toxic tort litigation and has been involved in a number of high profile cases throughout his career. Gerard, an Army veteran, has served as an Adjunct Professor of Law at Wake Forest School of Law teaching pretrial practice and procedure.

Audrey Snyder supports the firm in the areas of injury claims, including defective products, occupational diseases, and workers' compensation. She attended the Campbell University School of Law, graduating cum laude.

Gabriel Snyder is a workers' compensation attorney with Ward Black Law. He focuses his practice on representing North Carolinians who have been injured or killed at work or in accidents. He also represents people whose property has been negatively impacted by road and highway expansion projects. He attended the Campbell University School of Law.
